

The Alliance for Historic Landscape Preservation

THE ALLIANCE WANTS YOU !

Become ACTIVE in the Alliance – the oldest non-profit organization in the field of North American cultural landscape recognition, preservation and protection! The Alliance renews its commitment to bring you professional information you can use in your practice, your classroom, or your research.

ABOUT THE ALLIANCE

Since 1978, the Alliance has played a formative role in the movement to recognize, conserve, and manage cultural landscapes, whether designed or vernacular. The Alliance has provided an interdisciplinary forum for collegial exchange, professional renewal, and discussion of state-of-the-art methods and tools of landscape preservation.

The organization draws its members from diverse fields: landscape architecture, history, archaeology, geography, architecture, horticulture, and preservation and museum studies. Professionals and students alike have found a 'home' in the Alliance, through its website, newsletters, membership directory and conferences.

Annual meeting attendees have been immersed in the historic landscapes of many US states and several Canadian provinces. The organization explores the comprehensive range of cultural landscapes, from Georgia's African-American domestic 'swept yards' to commemorative landscapes, the focus of a meeting at the International Peace Garden on the border of North Dakota and Manitoba.

The 33rd Annual Meeting of the Alliance will take place in Fort Worth, Texas in April 2011.

OUR STRATEGIC DIRECTION

After 30 successful years, we are taking renewed strategic steps. With the support and involvement of our members, we will:

- Act as a central network to advance the field of historic landscape preservation.
- Increase understanding and promote its interdisciplinary nature.
- Engage in focused advocacy efforts through increased communication, networking and support among Alliance members.

BENEFITS OF MEMBERSHIP

For the modest annual due of $45, the Alliance offers these benefits to members:

- Access to exchanges with a network of accomplished professionals, academics and students AND access to information needed to solve challenges in-the-field.
- Annual thematic conferences at historic venues in the US and Canada, where local and regional experts provide unique perspectives on conservation challenges.
- Annual published newsletter and regular topical newswatches via e-mail.
